2045 Advertising web application:

Developed the frontend of 2045, a centralized advertising web application that enables businesses to manage and run ad campaigns across multiple digital platforms from a single interface. Designed responsive and user-friendly UI components, implemented intuitive dashboards for campaign creation and performance tracking, and ensured seamless user experience across devices. Collaborated with backend services to integrate APIs and focused on performance optimization, accessibility, and modern web standards.

PROJECT

Interior designer platform - Interior Designer Platform is a location-based web application that connects users with nearby interior designers based on their specific requirements. Users begin by registering with their live location, then log in to access a personalized dashboard. After completing a requirement declaration form, the platform suggests the nearest interior designers that best match the user's needs, displaying their ratings and reviews for informed decision-making. Users can seamlessly connect with selected designers through an integrated chatbot for quick and efficient communication."
